

“I knew I wanted to practice in Maine, and being the only law school in the state, it made perfect sense to attend and have a three year head start putting down roots and getting to know the legal community.”

